THE PROBLEM

Mainstream demand. Crypto-native UX.

Wallets, gas, chain pickers
The fan from the broadcast quits at "install a wallet".

Every bet is public
Your bankroll and positions, readable by anyone with your address.

Same question, five apps
Liquidity is split. Nobody shows you the best price.

No real brake
"Are you sure?" pop-ups. Agents with full keys.

THE SOLUTION

One account for every market.

No one sees your money

Encrypted balance. Explorer sees an account, not an amount.

Your limit is law

Set $50/day once. Over the line is blocked, not warned.

Agents get a budget

Not your keys. It can't spend a cent past the cap.

THE UX

Four taps. Zero crypto words.

Touch ID
No seed phrase, no gas

Set a limit
$20/day, enforced on-chain

Fund
From any chain, or private ZEC

Bet
Best price across every venue

BEST PRICE, AUTOMATICALLY

The cheapest quote isn't the cheapest fill.

VENUE	QUOTE	FEE ON 100 YES	ALL-IN
Kalshi	$0.60	$1.68	$61.68
Polymarket	$0.61	$0.00	$61.00 ✓

Illustrative. Large orders split across venues slice by slice. Hyperliquid live; other venues simulated in the demo.

WHY IT NEEDS CRYPTO

Rip out the chains and the promises break.

PROMISE	MADE TRUE BY
Fingerprint login, no gas, hard limits, receipts	Tempo passkeys + MPP spend-limited sessions
Hidden bankroll	Solana Confidential Balances
The payment is the order	Zcash shielded memos
Every market, best price	Hyperliquid HIP-4 builder codes + venue adapters
Bet and hedge a Fed decision	Robinhood Chain Stock Tokens (testnet, geofenced)

BUSINESS MODEL

A fee on every venue we route to.

Hyperliquid
Builder-code fee per trade

Polymarket
Builder attribution

Kalshi · Limitless
Referral / routing fees

Agent API
Paid per call over MPP

We grow with the whole category, not one venue's market share. The more mainstream it gets, the more UX is worth.

THE ASK

The next 100M users won't learn crypto.

tyr is how they'll trade the odds anyway. Open source, testnet live, built for the Crypto World's Fair.
